

Acentech – Office Reception

Since 1997 we have worked with Acentech (an acoustics, audiovisual and vibration consulting firm) on a series of projects – to create their primary conference room, develop a new acoustic laboratory for product research, and expand their facility.

In this project, we selected new carpeting and paint colors throughout the facility, designed space changes to move their primary acoustics lab and designed a new reception desk, which is one of the hubs of this bustling organization.

Acoustic panels above the reception desk mitigate noise being reflected from this location to adjacent office areas.

Completed Fall 2007.