

Graduate Student Lounge, MIT Chemical Engineering (Building 66)

The graduate student lounge needed to become more versatile, in order to serve a broader range of users and uses. Free coffee, tea and cocoa are offered in the yellow kitchen as a magnet for students and faculty.

A variety of seating and table sizes encourages lunch crowds as well as morning and afternoon breaks.

Whiteboards create a place for faculty and students to meet informally outside the labs.

The furniture can be rearranged to allow for departmental social events for as many as 150 persons.
